

Table of Contents

Preface (Manfred Kühn) — VII

Foreword — IX

Introduction — 1

Chapter I: The Context Of Kant's Ethics — 11

- 1 Kant's Conception Of Philosophy — 11
- 2 Kant's Philosophical Method: Logical and Transcendental — 20
- 3 The Chief Characteristics of Kant's Critical Thought — 33

Chapter II: The Copernican Revolution In Ethics: The Good Reexamined — 46

- 1 The Primacy of the Moral Law in the Determination of the Good — 46
- 2 The Heterogeneity of the Good — 54
- 3 The Good as the Object of the Moral Law — 61

Chapter III: Kant's Analysis Of The Will — 64

- 1 The Theoretical Background and Importance of the Religion — 64
- 2 Freedom — 69
- 3 The Human Will — 78
- 4 The Contribution of the Religion to Ethics — 114

Chapter IV: The Moral Good And The Natural Good — 116

- 1 Terminological Problems — 116
- 2 The Intrinsic Goodness of Both the Natural Good and the Moral Good — 119
- 3 Particular Natural Goods and the Natural Good — 129
- 4 Particular Natural Goods as Extrinsic, Relational Goods — 134
- 5 The Qualification of the Natural Good by the Moral Good — 141
- 6 Summary — 148

Chapter V: The Highest Good As The Material Object Of Moral Volition — 152

- 1 The Centrality of the Highest Good in Kant's Ethics — 152
- 2 Perfection (the Moral Good) as a Component of the Highest Good — 156
- 3 Happiness (the Natural Good) as a Component of the Highest Good — 164
- 4 The Unity of Perfection and Happiness in the Highest Good — 167

Chapter VI: The Highest Good As Immanent And As Transcendent — 173

- 1 The Highest Good as the Canon of Pure Reason — 173
- 2 The Immanence of the Highest Good — 184
- 3 The Transcendence of the Highest Good — 192

- 4 The Constitutive Immanence and Regulative Transcendence of the Highest Good — 197

Chapter VII: The Moral Task: The Embodiment Of The Highest Good — 203

- 1 The Moral Task as the Creation of Moral Schemata — 203
- 2 The Symbolic Schematism of the Highest Good — 211

Chapter VIII: The Role Of Judgment In Kant's Procedural Formalism — 225

- 1 The Procedure of Judgment in All Employments — 225
- 2 The Procedures of Judgment in Ethics — 231
- 3 The Procedural Formalism of Kant's Ethics — 246

Chapter IX: The Role Of Judgment In The Embodiment Of The Highest Good — 261

- 1 Moral Feeling — 261
- 2 The Cultivation of Moral Feeling — 272

Chapter X: Summary And Assessment — 281

- 1 Kant's Attempt to Reconcile the Christian and Scientific Worldviews — 281
- 2 The Heterogeneity of the Good — 282
- 3 The Clarification of the Concept of Freedom — 283
- 4 Kant's Response to Diderot's Demand for Moral Guidance — 287
- 5 Kant's Absolute Concept of Freedom — 290
- 6 Moral Incentive in Kant's Ethics — 298
- 7 Ethical Orthodoxy in Religious Education — 307

Appendix: Kant at Auschwitz — 314

- 1 The Holocaust — 314
- 2 Eichmann's Claim to be a Kantian — 317
- 3 Absolute Obedience in Kant's Ethics — 323
- 4 Devilishness as an Actual Mode of Freedom — 329
- 5 Alternative Explanations of Moral Responsibility — 335

Kant's Works And Their Abbreviations — 343

Other translations of Kant's works — 345

Bibliography — 346

Acknowledgements — 350

Index — 351