

Contents

Acknowledgments	page vii
Introduction	1
1 Children, Law, and Belonging	13
Attaching a Child to a Family or Community	17
The Unanchored Child	27
Disrupting Family and Group Identity	30
Children’s Communal Belonging, Rights, and the Law	34
Children’s Identities and Group Rights to Cultural Integrity	38
2 Community, Identity, and the Importance of Belonging	41
Belonging to Family, Community, and Nation	48
Voluntariness, Involuntariness, and Exit	51
Belonging and the Limits of Law	54
Securing Communal Values via Generational Ties	57
3 Rainbow Dreams and Domestic Transracial Adoption	61
The Assimilative Roots of Domestic Adoption Policy	68
Eclipsing the “As If” Family	73
Legislating Transracial Placements	74
Race, Culture, and Racial Culture	83
Multiracial Children and Navigating Identity	88
Innocence, Incorrigibility, and the Rhetoric of Rescue	89
Transracial Adoption and Communal Connections	95
4 Reclaiming the Diaspora and American Indian Children	102
Federal Policies from Eradication to Self-Determination	107
“Kill the Indian . . . and Save the Man”	113

vi	Contents
	Resurrecting Tribal Identity	120
	Reclaiming Indian Children	123
	Defining the Indian Child and “Indianness”	132
	Sinking into a Jurisdictional Bog	142
5	Transnational Adoption in a Shifting World	146
	The Global Migration of Children	153
	Belonging, Roots Trips, and Cultural Connections	162
	Emerging Human Rights Discourses	167
	The Hague Convention and Private Law	179
	The Collision Course in Transnational Adoption	183
	Conclusion	186
	Index	195