

Contents

List of abbreviations and acronyms	page vii
Preface	xi
1 Introduction: CSDP, strategic actorness and security governance	1
Conceptions of the EU as an international actor	2
The EU as a strategic actor	5
The governance turn in EU studies	9
The promise of the security governance approach	22
Strategic actorness and security governance	28
Structure of the book	30
2 European strategic culture and the Comprehensive Approach	34
Is there a European strategic culture?	35
Beyond constructive ambiguity	40
Creating a purpose for the CSDP	43
The reluctant military actor: acting comprehensively as an end	45
Concluding remarks	49
3 In pursuit of the EU interest: state, individual and institutional agency in the CSDP	52
The evolution of EU foreign policy-making: a search for efficiency	54
The expanding role of the Council Secretariat in the CSDP	57
The Solana legacy: the changing power of individuals in the CSDP	64
The impact of big and small Member States on the CSDP	70
Concluding remarks	74
4 The institutional link: creating a civil–military organisation fit for purpose	77
Two models for organising the civil–military interface	79

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-02890-6 - The European Union and Military Force: Governance and Strategy

Per M. Norheim-Martinsen

Table of Contents

More information

vi		Contents
	Flawed by design	82
	Reforming the civil–military structures	85
	Building a culture of coordination	91
	The joint SITCEN: a pathfinder for EU civil–military integration?	95
	Concluding remarks	99
5	Building European capabilities: beyond the transatlantic gap	103
	The capability gap and the concept of interoperability	105
	The Headline Goal 2003: (re-)counting old capabilities	108
	The Headline Goal 2010: from quantity to quality (I)?	110
	The case of the Nordic Battlegroup	112
	Lead and niche nations: the CSDP as arena for role specialisation	118
	The European Defence Agency: managing the system top-down?	121
	The civilian capability process: sending solicitors to war	127
	The Civilian Headline Goal 2008: from quantity to quality (II)?	130
	Broad interoperability as comparative advantage	131
	Concluding remarks	133
6	CSDP operations: learning through failure or failing to learn?	136
	Categorising EU operations	138
	Europe and its Southern flanks: mastering your own backyard	140
	Africa and the wider Middle East: a testing ground for the CSDP	152
	The world is the stage: the EU's global ambitions	165
	Concluding remarks	166
7	Conclusion: a comprehensive strategic actor for the future?	168
	A comprehensive strategic actor?	171
	EU security governance revisited: a strategic actor for the future?	182
	Notes	186
	References	198
	Index	226