

---

Contents

|                                                                                                                 |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| COMMONS GAME Made More Excitingby an Intelligent Utilization of the Two EvolutionaryAlgorithms |     |
| Norio Baba, Hisashi Handa .....                                                                          | 1   |
| Adaptive Generation of Dilemma-based Interactive Narratives                                              |     |
| Heather Barber, Daniel Kudenko .....                                                                     | 19  |
| Computational Intelligence in Racing Games                                                               |     |
| Julian Togelius, Simon M. Lucas and Renzo De Nardi .....                                                 | 39  |
| Evolutionary Algorithms for Board Game Playerswith Domain Knowledge                                 |     |
| Kyung-Joong Kim and Sung-Bae Cho .....                                                                   | 71  |
| The ChessBrain Project – Massively Distributed ChessTree Search                                     |     |
| Colin Frayn, Carlos Justiniano .....                                                                     | 91  |
| Designing and Developing Electronic Market Games                                                         |     |
| Maria Fasaki and Michael Michalakopoulos .....                                                           | 117 |
| EVE’s Entropy: A Formal Gauge of Fun in Games                                                            |     |
| Kevin Burns .....                                                                                        | 153 |
| Capturing Player Enjoyment in Computer Games                                                             |     |
| Georgios N. Yannakakis, John Hallam .....                                                                | 175 |