

Contents

List of illustrations	page vii
Acknowledgement	viii
Note on the transcription of Chinese names	ix
Note on Chinese weights and measurements	ix
 Prologue	 1
 I PRELUDES
1 Tradition, opening-up and modernity	13
1 Pre-modern growth and the rise of the merchant communities	13
2 The opening-up of China and the birth of the modern sector	24
3 The new urban elites of the treaty ports	37
 II THE EMERGENCE OF A BOURGEOIS CLASS
2 The economic miracle	63
1 The First World War: a magnificent opportunity	64
2 The upsurge of the modern sector and the second wave of Chinese industrialisation	70
3 The modern sector and the national economy: resistance to the world reconversion crisis	83
4 A fragile miracle: the cotton mill crisis (1923–4)	92
3 The new entrepreneurs in the city	99
1 Businessmen in the town	100
2 Businessmen in urban society	123
3 Breaking-through to the ruling classes: the organisations of the new bourgeoisie	131

vi	Contents
4	The social structures of the new bourgeoisie	140
1	Regional solidarities: the geographic structures of the Shanghai business community	141
2	The family structures of Chinese capitalism	152
3	A rough typology of Chinese entrepreneurs	164
III THE BOURGEOISIE AND THE QUEST FOR POWER AND MODERNITY
5	The bourgeoisie, the State and the revolution, 1911–27	189
1	1911: the elusive bourgeois revolution	191
2	An unsuccessful Meiji: the failure of Yuan Shikai (1912–16)	201
3	The May Fourth Movement (1919): the bourgeois revolution at last?	207
4	The bid for liberalism (1920–3)	217
5	Counter-revolution and the restoration of State power: the bourgeoisie rally to Chiang Kai-shek (1927)	227
6	Capitalism, Westernisation and nationalism	242
1	Bourgeois nationalism and Chinese nationalism	243
2	Nationalist activism: the practice and ideology of boycotting	251
3	The mirages of neo-colonialism	258
4	Towards a national revolution	266
	Epilogue	272
1	After 1927: the bureaucracy's return in force and the decline of the bourgeoisie	272
2	State capitalism, bureaucratic capitalism and the professionalisation of the bureaucracy under the Nanking government (1927–37)	284
3	Communists and capitalists	293
	Notes	298
	Bibliography	321
	Index	345
	Series list	356