

Contents

Contributors	page vii
Acknowledgments	ix
I: SENECA AND THE SELF: NEW DIRECTIONS
1. Introduction	3
Shadi Bartsch and David Wray
2. Seneca on the self: why now?	20
A. A. Long
II: PHILOSOPHICAL PERSPECTIVES
3. Seneca and self assertion	39
Brad Inwood
4. Seneca and selfhood: integration and disintegration	65
Christopher Gill
5. Stoic laughter: a reading of Seneca's Apocolocyntosis	84
Martha C. Nussbaum
III: SENECA AND ROMAN CULTURE
6. Seneca on fortune and the kingdom of god	115
Elizabeth Asmis
7. Free yourself! Slavery, freedom and the self in Seneca's Letters	139
Catharine Edwards
8. Seneca on self-examination: rereading On Anger 3,36	160
James Ker

vi	Contents
9.	Senecan metaphor and Stoic self-instruction Shadi Bartsch	188
IV:	READING THE TRAGEDIES
10.	Seneca and the denial of the self Alessandro Schiesaro	221
11.	Seneca and tragedy's reason David Wray	237
12.	Dissolution of the self in the Senecan corpus Austin Busch	255
	Bibliography	283
	Index	298