

Contents

Preface	page vii
Acknowledgements	xv
Acronyms	xix
Introduction	I
1 Social Democracy's Stance on Antisemitism and the Spectre of 'Philosemitism'	21
2 The Influence of 'Zur Judenfrage' on the Socialist Movement	37
The First Great Misunderstanding	39
The Second Great Misunderstanding	44
The Third Great Misunderstanding	45
3 The Socialist Uses and Abuses of 'Zur Judenfrage'	56
'Zur Judenfrage' in the Mainstream Socialist Press	57
Mehring's Role in the Popularisation of 'Zur Judenfrage'	61
Wilhelm Liebknecht and 'Zur Judenfrage'	64
August Bebel and 'Zur Judenfrage'	70
Antisemitism, 'Philosemitism' and False Consciousness	81
'The Jewish Question' in Die Heilige Familie	85
Mehring's Specific Spin on 'Zur Judenfrage'	91
4 The Social Democratic Party Congress of 1903 and the Case of Hans Leuß	103
The Antisemitic Deputy Hans Leuß	110
Leuß Turns to Mehring	114
The Case of Hans Leuß at the Party Congress in Dresden	116
Eisner and Gradnauer Intervene	120
The Intervention of the Fraktion	126
5 The Former Antisemite Leuß on Antisemitism and 'the Jewish Question'	135
6 Antisemitism and 'the Jewish Question' in Dresden	149
Harden's Jewish Background	149
Wilhelm Liebknecht, Karl Kraus and the Fackel	152
Harden and the Party Congress of 1892	168
Yet Another Great Misunderstanding	169

vi	Contents
7	The Evolution of Bernstein’s Stance on Antisemitism and ‘the Jewish Question’	173
	Bernstein’s Dispute with Bax (1898/99)	179
	Bernstein, Eleanor Marx and Johannes Menzinger (1898)	187
	‘The Jewish Question’ in Revolutionary Russia (1906)	193
	Bernstein as a Historian of Anti-Antisemitism (1907)	196
	The Shift in Bernstein’s Emphasis During the War	196
	Mehring Verses Bernstein (1904)	202
	Conclusion	213
	Select Bibliography	229
	Index	249